

A place to gather on the topics of health, wellbeing and positivity

Dear valued tenants,

We proudly present to you... Issue #8! This week our issue is devoted to the power of nature. We pulled some fun stories and resources to help us all live happier, healthier lives... outdoors!

We are pleased to remind you that the following facilities are now open:

Jamieson Place Fitness Centre. Please access our building website to find out more information regarding the new protocols in place in the Fitness Centre:

<https://www.jamiesonplace.com/index.php/amenities-services/fitness-centre>

Should you have any questions regarding the Fitness Centre reopening, please contact Ross Williams at LIV North at jpfitness@livnorth.com

P1 Changerooms and Showers. A capacity limit of 4 has been set to ensure proper physical distancing in the facility. Complimentary towel service is available. Common use items such as hair tools, steamers, and coat hangers will remain out of service at this time. Lockers will also remain out of service. Changeroom information and use guidelines can Better Together with QuadReal. We're excited to launch a suite of online programs, exclusive to the QuadReal community. From exploring the natural world to learning about urban farming and how to keep healthy, artists, instructors and other experts will be invited to share their passions, helping bring joy to your day. Stay tuned for more details in our next issue

The Road to Well-Being Can Be Found in Nature. Spending just two hours outdoors a week can help introduce calm into our lives and improve overall health, according to a recently published study. While the research notes some flexibility, having a minimum of 120 minutes in an urban park with large trees, a ravine, or hiking trail, is key to promote greater physical and mental health. Read the study highlights or listen to the podcast and make time for nature!

It's #Wild Out There. We can thank the white-throated sparrow for a different kind of twitter trending event. A new bird song "went viral" among sparrows making its way throughout Canada and the United States. Across the pond, rhinos just want to have fun! Rolling in a mud bath to be specific. The critically endangered Javan rhinoceros was captured on camera doing just that in Banten, Indonesia.

Keeping Kids Engaged with the Outdoors. Look for Nature Activities, part of Evergreen's Learning at Home program for the whole family. From Window Nature Bingo to The Silly Storyteller, there are numerous educational resources to help the family explore at home and around the neighbourhood.

Nature... virtually. We know that getting out to the wild is not always possible. So after a long stroll or bike ride we suggest relaxing with a virtual tour of the world's most magnificent natural and cultural locations. Choose from 17 national parks from around the globe or a UNESCO World Heritage site. Popcorn recommended.

This day in history. On July 10, 1949 the first practical rectangular television was presented in Ohio. The picture tube measured 12 x 16 inches and sold for $12. No HD features or 50 channels just yet, and streaming was going to be a few years still...
